Mortarboard · 1952

To Mrs. Philips with gratitude for your helpful comments and sympathetic interest
The Mortarboard Staff
May, 1951

Lend us, Barnard, for an hour
Light to carry home

Lift your pillared brow and stately
On the city's morning roar,
Feel these restless currents lately
Swelling stronger than before.
Other floods must break below you
Life renewed must course your springs.
Barnard, wise and grave we know you,
Young to urgent things.

From our land you call your daughters
Far from plain and wind scuffed tide.
Cities reared by older waters
Send their children to your side.
Here to drink your vibrant power
Here, by swept Atlantic foam,
Lend us, Barnard, for an hour,
Light to carry home.

While you still love life and reason
While you still shall hold to truth
While each year's returning season
Seals the pledge you gave to youth.
Lift your light in fearless warning.
Through the world of night and cloud,
Barnard, rise upon the morning,
Calm, and grave, and proud.

1952 MORTARBOARD

Barnard College

Columbia University, New York City

To Professor Gertrude Verity Rich

we dedicate the 1952 Mortarboard.

As teacher, advisor, and friend

she has more than fulfilled her position as honorary member of the Class of 1952.

In all of our endeavors

she has given selflessly of her interest, time, and energy.

Mrs. Rich has shared with us the experiences and memories

which we have tried to capture in our book.

It is with a profound sense of gratitude that we offer it to her as a measure of our appreciation.

A·LOESSER

President and General, Dwight David Eisenhower combines the pioneering spirit of an educator with a soldier's keen sense of awareness.
Academic robes have been temporarily laid aside as the general assumes his unique position as Commander-in-Chief of the Atlantic Pact Nations.
He brings to this great task
the creative ability and steadfastness of purpose which have ever inspired our confidence in him.

To Dean Millicent Carey McIntosh

we extend our firmest support in sharing with her a vision of a Barnard of ever-widening scope in its opportunities for women—

a Barnard directed toward the preparation of women for their roles in the future.

To Mrs. Rustin McIntosh

who has so bridged the gap between the academic realm of ideas and the world of dynamic forces

we give immeasurable gratitude for having matured under her guidance.

From bus . . .

. . . and the dorms

From bus, subway, and the dorms
Barnardites arrive for early morning classes.
A restless city has awakened and its streets fill with crowds and the roar of traffic.
From all parts of the metropolitan area
students converge on Barnard Hall.

On The City's Morning Roar

New York Is Barnard's Laboratory

Field work at the McMahon Shelter

Field work of every kind may be carried on in the huge laboratory to which Barnard has immediate access. Sociology majors find many opportunities to put to the test of practical application their theories of settlement work. Fine Arts majors have a unique advantage with great museums, galleries, and famous buildings so close at hand. Our academic building may be located on one square block, but this in no way limits the scope of the various endeavors begun there. The whole city and its environs lies before us presenting a host of possibilities for stimulating inquiry and work.

Weigh . . .

the Sciences

Weigh, dissect, measure and mix—labs represent hours of exacting mental work coupled with physical endurance. A day ends perfectly for the inhabitants of the fourth floor Milbank when logs check, unknowns are identified or one's frog manages to have a sub-clavian artery after all.

Dissect . . .

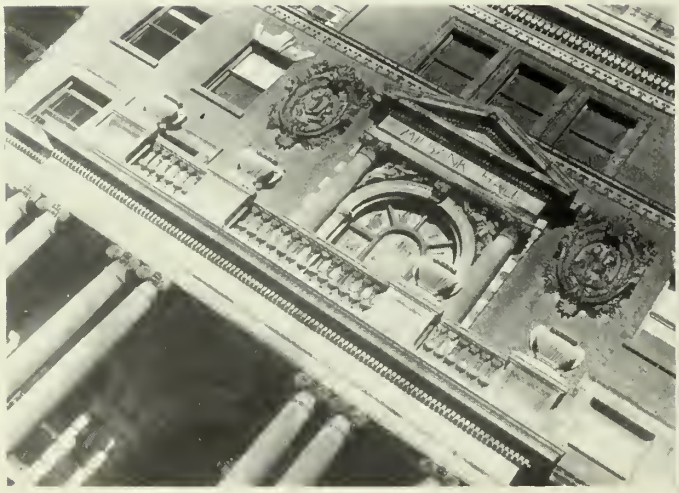
Measure and Mix

. . . one last cigarette on the porch

Milbank Hall

There are two means of approach to Milbank Hall—the leisurely stroll across campus, talking to friends, and then one last cigarette on the porch—or the harried dash from subway or bus and the last minute spurt of speed to reach the door just as the bell rings.

In either case, one arrives at the building where most of our academic classes are held. "This sturdy structure of Victorian architecture" is the center of our daily activities—from the seminar rooms in the basement to the greenhouses on the roof — from anthropology to zoology.



What makes you come so soon?

The Library

"To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield"

Many hours of intensive study and thorough research are spent in the library. Silence is broken only by the squeak of the chairs or the call of the librarian for an overdue book. For those spare moments, there are comfortable alcoves and shelves stacked with current periodicals and light reading material.

College Assemblies

All-college assemblies offer full, rich, and entertaining programs. Barnard, as a metropolitan college, is particularly fortunate in being able to invite many distinguished speakers and performers in the arts, sciences and humanities. The assemblies attempt to give to Barnardites practical insight in applying a college education to future endeavors. Assemblies afford the occasion to hear statesman and scientist, poet and philosopher, achieving a balance between the theoretical and actual.

Commencement

The enlmination of the academic year oecnrs at the aunnal step-singing program when each class assumes its new statns to the accompaniment of the familiar "Yon can tell".

This is bnt onc of the events in Senior Week whieh also featnres the Senior Ball, Baccalaureat Service, Ivy Ceremony, and Class Night. Finally, the long awaited Commencement Exercises and diploma presentation mark an offieial end to undergraduate days at Barnard and the assnmption of a new role as alnmnae.

"We're one in sisterhood"

"Stand Columbia, Alma Mater"

The Formal

All-college formals bring to Barnard some measure of the gay life of the city. A Barnardite performs a major metamorphosis as she changes from her casual academic garb to billowing satin or lace, ready to grace the arm of her escort. The once bare gym, decorated and in candlelight, reflects the night life of the metropolis.

"Come Dance With Me"

"I only have eyes for you"

"Orchids for Milady"

and the Informal

Many pleasant hours are spent beyond the green gates of Barnard. The cup of coffee at Tilson's, quick snack at Chock Full or the Sandwich Shop, dinner at Robin Dell or the King's Kitchen, the collegiate atmosphere of The Lion's Den are all part of those "bright college days that fly so swiftly".

"Let's have another cup of coffee"

"What if tomorrow bring . . ."

Evening at the Dorms

"Tomorrow's the future still . . ."

"In earnest work . . .

. . . and joyous pleasure"

The President adds his welcome . . .

Freshman Weekend

Freshman Weekend was the scene of scurrying sponsors searching for their Freshmen. When they were found, two days of introductions followed. The Dean greeted the Class of '54 at Luncheon. Tours of the campus highlighted the Jungle and Jake. Columbia played host to Barnard at a dance at John Jay, and the invitation was returned with a rollicking co-ed playday at Barnard. By the time classes began, bewildered Freshmen were as scarce as a 4.0 average.

. . . to the Dean's greeting

WELCOME '54

Barnard Camp

Barnard Camp in Croton is the haven for those who like the simple things in life. A week-end at camp means home-cooking, pumping water, sleeping repleat with mittens and ear-muffs, rousing fun in the outdoors or relaxation before the open fireplace. Whether it's sleighriding in the winter, or hikes in the spring . . . civilization, take it away!

"B's for the Buckets of wholesome fun"

Now we're cooking with gas!

Barbecues feature chicken roasted over wood coals

Greek Games

The classic rivalry at Barnard is Greek Games, annual competition between freshmen and sophomores. In the spirit of ancient Greece, athletic prowess, music, lyric poetry, and the dance are combined in a pageant dedicated to the Olympian gods. Exeitement runs high as shouts of niké, reverberate throughout the laurel decked gymnasium. For a few hours each year, this tradition transports us from the complexities of modern life to "the grandeur that was Greece".

". . . grudge not happy outcome to our games"

Niké!

Focus for understanding other cultures, temperaments and attitudes is provided by the many language clubs. "With heart to heart in common good"

Religious clubs on campns fnnction as centers for the exchange of ideas and viewpoints of specific issues within the broad framework of theological discussion with distinguished guest speakers. The center for great activity is Earl Hall where clubs hold their meetings and sponsor many social affairs.

The keystone for the Barnard religions clubs is Interfaith Council, consisting of representatives of each of the organizations. The conneil seeks to inerease cooperation among the various religious groups throngh the sponsorship of programs such as the Thursday noon meetings and the informal teas and discnssions with members of the faeulty.

A high point in the University religious program is the Christmas Candlelight serviee held at St. Paul's Chapel. Candlelight in a dark chapel seems symbolic of man in his belief in a knowledge beyond the finite.

Every girl enrolled at Barnard is a member of the Athletic Association and consequently becomes introduced to the physical aspects of education early in her college career. "For health and strength," the A.A., with the cooperation of the Department of Physical Education, plans an active and varied program of events.

Physical Education not only serves the practical purpose of teaching skills and sports which may be enjoyed when college days have passed, but the spirit of the program emphasizes the goal of a sound mind in a healthy body.

Barnard Bulletin

Barnard's fourth estate speaks its own language as every Tuesday and Thursday, amid scurrying reporters and groaning typewriters, it edits a torrent of words, dummies pages, writes heads, crops cuts, and finally puts Bulletin to bed. Editors burn twilight oil and down quarts of coffee as they attempt to keep Barnard's community informed in the best journalistic style.

You can tell by the trend of my talk,
You can tell by my Hygiene A walk,
You can tell by my look
Which is fixed on my book.
You can tell by the affrighted air
Which I wear when a sophomore is there
You can tell by the way
That I blush when I say,
I'M A FRESHMAN!

You can tell by my swaggering walk
You can tell by the brag in my talk
You can tell all the while
By my wise little smile.
You can tell by my look of disdain
Little freshman kids give me a pain,
You can tell very well
That I'm pleased with myself.
I'M A SOPHOMORE!

You can tell by the skip in my walk,
You can tell by the flip in my talk,
You can tell all the while
By the guile in my smile.
You can tell by my fast graying hair,
Freshman sisters are surely a care.
You can tell when I say
I've not studied today
I'M A JUNIOR!

You can tell by my cap and my gown
You can tell by my reproving frown
You can tell any day
By my dignified way.
You can tell by my sad little sigh
When I say, "How the years have gone by!"
You can surely tell when
I treat profs just like men,
I'M A SENIOR!

Your annual is a graphic record of the college year . . . a picture-and-type story of its academic, athletic and social highlights. It is a keepsake that you will cherish throughout all your alumni years. As such, it deserves the best that modern processes of printed reproduction can provide.
